

Preface vii

Acknowledgements ix

Abbreviations and Conventions x

Notes on Contributors xi

Introduction. 'Gone Missing': Democracy and Anti- democracy in Seventeenth- Century England 1
Cesare Cuttica and Markku Peltonen

part 1

Democracy and the People: Citizenship, Representation and the Commonwealth

1 Imagining Citizenship in the Levellers and Milton 21
Rachel Foxley

2 Democracy, Toleration, and the Interests of the People 45
Alan Cromartie

3 'All Government is in the people, from the people, and for the people': Democracy in the English
Revolution 66
Markku Peltonen

4 The Place of Democracy in Late Stuart England 88
Hannah Dawson

part 2

Democracy and the World- Turned- Upside- Down: Religion, Emotions and Polemical Fire

5 'A most dangerous rudeness': Anti- populism and the Literary Justification of Absolutism in the Fiction of John Barclay (1582– 1621) 113
Matthew Growhoski

6 The Spectre Haunting Early Seventeenth- Century England (ca. 1603– 1649): Democracy at Its Worst 132
Cesare Cuttica

7 Anti- puritanism as Political Discourse; the Laudian Critique of Puritan 'Popularity' 152
Peter Lake

8 Presbyterians, Republicans, and Democracy in Church and State, ca. 1570– 1660 174
Rachel Hammersley

9 Poetry, the Passions, and Anti- democracy in Later Stuart England 194
John West

part 3

Democracy and the Other: Slaves, Natives and Women

10 Democracy and Anti- democracy: the Roger Williams and John Cotton Debate Revisited 217
Camilla Boisen

11 'The vulgar only scap'd who stood without': Milton and the Politics of Exclusion 239
Martin Dzelzainis

12 A Democratic Culture? Women, Citizenship and Subscriptional Texts in Early Modern England 260
Edward Vallance

13 The Parliament of Women and the Restoration Crisis 279
Gaby Mahlberg

Index 297