

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction i

- 1 Historical Origins of the Interdisciplinary Approach 24
- 2 Historians and Their Own Models 51
- 3 Knowledge and Its Theoretical Place in a Historical Discussion 75
- 4 Discourse as Another Form of Knowledge 110
- 5 Memory and History 149
- 6 Imagining the Subjective and Inventing the Objective 186
- 7 Civil Society and the Historian 216

Conclusion 244

Selected Bibliography 255

Index 268