

Introduction. An indistinct picture	9
I. Desire	25
Chapter I. Love is colder than death	27
Chapter II. On how law becomes freedom	59
Chapter III. Not all things are destined for transience	91
II. Drive and fantasy	119
Chapter IV. The coupling of sex and death is not exclusive to decadent romantics	121
Chapter V. An impulse toward lawlessness	157
Chapter VI. Below zero: the “negativity deficit” in Axel Honneth	191
III. Action	215
Chapter VII. Our time unlocks a multiplicity in each desire	217
Chapter VIII. On the political power of the inhuman	239
Chapter IX. Towards an anti-predicative concept of recognition	271
Conclusion	301
Bibliography	305
Name index	317
Subject index	321