

Acknowledgements vii
Note on References viii

Introduction 1

- 1 'Our Notion from the Very Beginning' 1
- 2 Ethics and Politics 5
- 3 Overview of Chapters 8

1 Prometheus Plus Spartacus 11

- 1 Introduction 11
- 2 The Action of Freedom 13
- 3 Labour and Objectification 19
- 4 Democracy 27

2 From Freedom to Self-Emancipation 36

- 1 Introduction 36
- 2 Reckonings 38
- 3 Linking the Present to the Future 46
- 4 Educating the Educator 55

3 Historical Materialism and Self-Emancipation 64

- 1 History and Prophecy 64
- 2 False Starts 69
- 3 History as Constraint 73
- 4 It's Been Coming! – Determination and Inevitability 77
- 5 History and Strategy 83

4 Communism, Utopia and Vision 89

- 1 Introduction 89
- 2 Communism as Vision 92
- 3 Whose Ideals, Whose Society? 95
- 4 Utopia Negativa 107

5 Exploitation, Justice and Freedom 118

- 1 Introduction 118
- 2 Exploitation and Justice 122
- 3 Mutato Nomine de te Fabula Narratur 126
- 4 The Wedges of Hephaestus 134

6 Alienation, Human Nature, Human Good 143

- 1 Introduction 143
- 2 Marx and Human Nature 148
- 3 Revolutionary Aristotelianism and Its Limits 155
- 4 The Human Bad 160

7 Denouncing the Abyss 166

- 1 Politics and the Political 166
- 2 Politicising and Depoliticising 169
- 3 Demanding, Smashing, Seizing 175
- 4 Politics and Self-Emancipation 182

8 Self-Emancipation and Revolutionary Practice 188

- 1 Introduction 188
- 2 Leon Trotsky and the Interdependence of Means and Ends 189
- 3 Stephen D'Arcy and the Democratic Standard for Militancy 194
- 4 Georg Lukács and the Actuality of Revolution 198

5 Jane McAlevey and Whole Worker Organising	205
6 Conclusion (Once More on Theory and Practice)	209

Bibliography 213

Index 221